

Residential Assisted Living

DEFINITION

Residential Assisted Living Facilities also known as Residential Care Homes offer the opportunity for persons needing care to receive assistance in an intimate home setting located in residential neighborhoods.

They offer professional services with a high ratio of staff-to-resident assistance. Their services range from basic assistance and reminders, to memory care, “end-of-life care” and other more complex services as needed.

Residential Assisted Living Facilities are licensed in a variety of ways and are governed by state law involving regulation and inspection by the State of MN, County and / or local agencies.
